Assassin's Creed: Brotherhood Soundtrack is a soundtrack album by Peter McConnell, a British musician and record producer. It was released in Australia on April 11, 2012 via Liberation Music and features an original selection of "The Art of War" alongside cover versions by artists such as Mastodon, The Dillinger Escape Plan, and Tom Morello. In December 2011, it was announced that the Assassin's Creed: Brotherhood soundtrack would be released on March 14 in Australia. The album was released digitally on March 13, and a physical version was released in Australia on March 14. On February 5, 2012 the soundtrack was given an AOC (Album of the Year) award by Australian radio station Triple J. The cover art for both releases is by American street artist/illustrator Ron English. On April 3, 2012, it was announced that American singer and songwriter Alicia Keys will be releasing a cover of Peter McConnell's "The Brotherhood Escapes" with an accompanying music video in support of the game and her 2012 in-the-works album Girl On Fire.
